

ROUGHING IT

A plain white wall is so passé, but if a feature wall or wallpaper is not your thing, a new wave of wall art products might be just the answer. This season, walls are all about texture and wall art manufacturers are busy trying to meet demand from consumers who just can't get enough of textured walls. WallArt Wall Decor offers a range of panels that can be easily installed and quickly painted in any colour you choose. Made from the fibrous residue that remains after the juice has been extracted from sugarcane stalks, the raw material in these panels is 100 per cent recycled. It is also one of the most renewable resources in the world – sugarcane can be harvested up to three times a year. The raw material in the panels is also compostable and biodegradable, so you can feel good about using this on-trend product. Head to www.wallartwalldecor.com.au for more.
